Hardi Mankodi
Student of Karlsruhochschule

"To me, studying at Karlsruhochschule means being part of a truly international place, where we identify ourselves not by national, ethnic or religious origins, but by the common values we share. We are encouraged to develop critical perspectives and to be responsible global citizens. In my program International Business, I not only learn how to be a successful business woman - I learn how to connect business with important values like sustainability and social responsibility."
